

Is legalisation the same as apostille?

No.

A document legalization is only issued by a foreign embassy, consulate, or consular office after a document has first been issued a state or federal authentication certificate (not an apostille certificate) on it by a U.S secretary of state office or the United States Department of State.